Basket Weaving (AP)

A. Basketcase is having great difficulties in Basket Weaving. I recommend that she gets a private tutor. She doesn't seem to grasp the concept of threading the straw through the sticks. Perhaps, this class is just too advanced for her. She seemed so promising at first, but seemed to fall apart under pressure. Too bad.

Because: She has remained understanding and tolerant during times of pressure,
 Because: She has radiated her enthusiasm
 over all of us,
 Because: She has motivated us through her smile and sweet voice,
 Because: She is a lady with a lot of class,
 Because: She has introduced us to such exciting characters as Julius, Huck, Hester and Holden,
 Because: She is foreign in name, but exuberant about English,
 Because: She has been an advisor of the lit-

"Geri Carrottop"

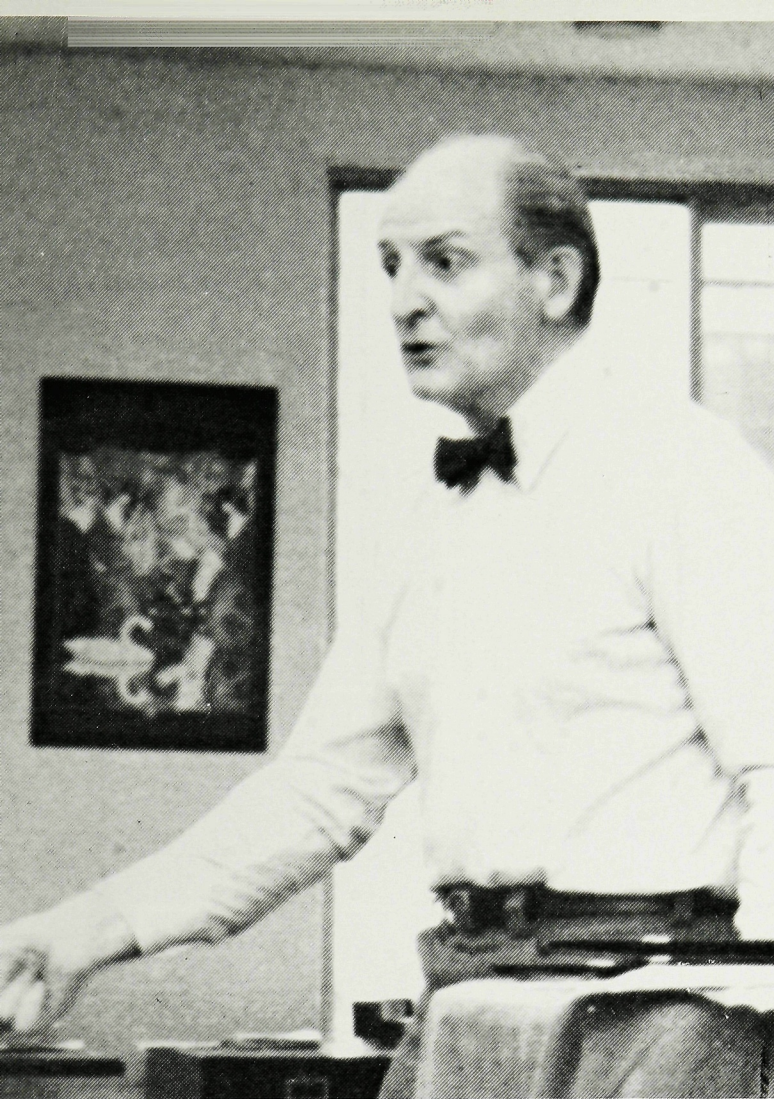

Goodbye,
Mr. Allison

So, if you walked up to a NSCDS alum on the streets of New York City and said the name "Vincent B. Allison" you might get a number of responses. You might get a 30-second medley of Gilbert & Sullivan, you might get a condensed version of Handel's Messiah, you might get a prolonged B-flat, or you might get, "Mr. Allison! Oh my God! I remember him!" and you'll send him/her humming off down Central Park West. Every student who was here during Mr. Allison's term will remember him well. Mr. Allison has always been an integral part of the school. In fact, it's quite a task to imagine the North Shore Country Day School without Mr. Allison. Who will head the school in "O'er the Fields?" and "Jingle Bells"?

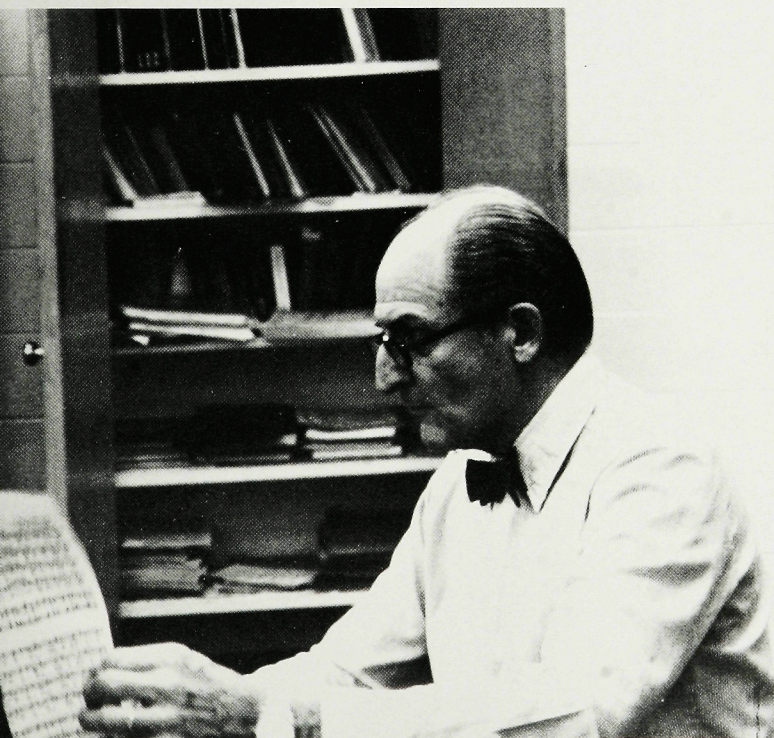

Who will introduce the Morning Ex's?

Who will play the piano music so we can get out of Morning ex?

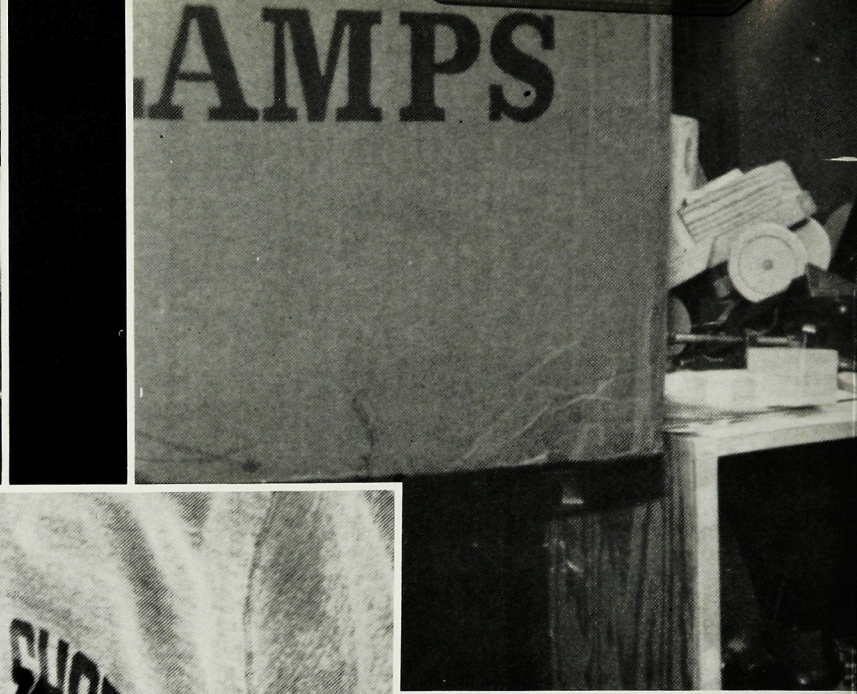

Most important, who will add that touch of culture and class that we have known all these years?

Thank you, Mr. Allison for filling the halls with your fullest voice, and thank you for filling the school with music and for sharing its beauty with us.

We will miss you, Mr. Allison.

From Winnetka Vice to the new town meetings, student council has been very busy this year. Student council has made many changes; under the supervision of Mr. Bill Goss, the council elected an executive board and has many new ideas from fresh faces. One of the main subjects on the agenda at the beginning of the year was to try to get the council to be more apart of the school. I believe we have successfully completed that goal. Student council has come a very long way, but has some steps to conquer still. However, the enthusiasm, energy and effort of the members should allow them to continue striving for the best possible school.

This is Not the Student Council

We look forward to every Wednesday. Do you want me to tell you why? I am not telling!! (HA) Just kidding. Forum is every Wednesday. We have a lot of fun, but there is also a substantial amount of work involved. Most of all, we like hearing Mr. Kramer's stories and jokes (which are usually not very funny)! This year we have accomplished three very special things . . . The skateboard contest, the social events and Plowshares. We are proud to say that Plowshares raised a lot of money for the poor people. Anyway, it has been a great year!

Middle School Forum

When the journalism class met in the beginning of the year, our very first order of business was to change the name of the newspaper. It is now known as The Enterprise. Because we were starting practically from scratch, it took quite a while to actually get the paper moving. One of our major problems was that in the beginning, we were working out of a classroom and setting up wherever we could ("Well, guys, we could use this for an office," "But Brian, that's the trash dumpster!" "Shut up and get to work.") Our goal was to publish a paper that people (students, especially) would want to read. We hoped to do as professional a job as possible with the limited time, space, and resources we had to work with.

We held journalism class twice a week with Dr. Geyer as advisor. These "discussions" had to be seen to be believed. Everyone had an opinion concerning what everyone else should have been doing. The rest of the week we were on our own. We had the help, however, of kind souls such as Mr. Shipley, without whom the columns on each page would probably be consistently tilted at a 45 degree angle (with the headlines penciled in) and Mr. Conroy, whose unlimited skills at the English language were of immense help. Since I am writing this in advance, I can't be sure, but I hope that by now The Enterprise has become a paper we can all be proud of. I would also like to thank my staff and our advisor, Dr. Geyer. No matter how many fits I threw, I was really having fun. Everyone likes a power trip

Stage crew got off to a good start in January. The first Vaudeville crew meeting was January 24. It consisted of a discussion of the first Vaudeville rehearsal. During the rehearsal the members became acquainted with their jobs. While the vaudeville performers did their acts, stage crewers took notes on sound settings, spotlight cues, the opening and closing of the curtain etc. The movement of musical instruments and other equipment is a big deal this year because of all the music based acts in the show. If all goes well, Vaudeville will run smoothly. After Vaudeville the stage crew will begin working on the opera set. We will spend a great deal of time after school making it. From the looks of it now, this is going to be a great year.

Spirit & Dance Committee

The Spirit Committee, an organization which was dead last year, started out this year by selling hot dogs at one of North Shore's numerous football victories. The unsuccessfully cooked hot dogs killed the Spirit Committee once again . . . The rebirth of the committee was after Vaudeville 1986, with a successful dance, attended by all. For the rest of the WONDERFUL school year, the Spirit Committee hopes to be involved in many more activities.

This year's Sangerbünd was comprised of a group of twenty-some enthusiastic students who sang everything from traditional Christmas carols to almost contemporary pieces. The Sangerbund Christmas Morning Ex was a treat as usual, as the Sangerbünd presented its program which Mr. Allison faithfully calls the "carols one does not usually hear in the shopping malls or on the radio."

The Sangerbünd also performed its Christmas repertoire for the Art Institute, and locally in Winnetka. We also voyaged to Minneapolis to sing for the Blake schools this year. We're sorry Mr. Allison won't be around next year to conduct us, but we hope the Sangerbünd tradition will continue for many years to come.

Our copy editor, Aviva (akachaka) Chan was new to the staff this year. She had a lovely intimate relationship with the office computer. She even adopted pet names for it such as, &@%&*@#!!.. Occasionally they would have a little dispute in which Aviva would blare "shut up" at least fourteen times in the space of three minutes, quickly followed by an incessant thumping of the keyboard. When asked a question Aviva's most popular replies are (I don't know) (nobody told me!) adding shortly thereafter (I don't need you guys!) Aviva belongs to a small but fast growing religious sect which practices sleeping on the floor in the shape of a tiny ball with a coat over one's body.

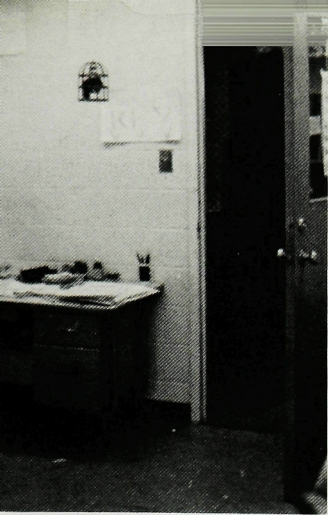

Eric Matthies our Mowhawked skateboarding Husker -Du-Ed photo editor, was quite a trouper. Despite our eternal needling of him (see table of contents) he came thru on every count. A recluse—nay, a slave of the dark room, he amazed us all with his promptness and inspiring photo angles. When the administration instituted the (Yechh, Bleahhk, Gag) six-o'clock rule, Eric's headquarters became . . . his 83rd floor not-as-yet-light-type bathroom! WOW! what dedication! Not being perfect, however, Eric sometimes let the penlight leap out of his hands and attack the undeveloped prints. He worked admirably well, though, considering the almost opaque fog which seemed to continually hang around the enlarger.

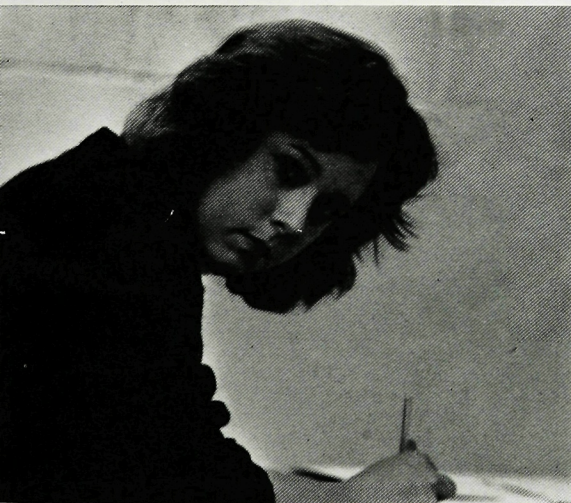

Mary Ellen Wing is (or rather WAS) the business editor. She Kajoled poeple into buying small amounts of space in the book for LARGE amounts of money. She worked real hard (we think, but she did all out of office work, so weee don't and knoooo heooo heooo heooo !) And we are happy and she likes her dog and so do we and she has umpton.

Joel de la Fuente wins the annual (With The Slowest Dittorer This Side of Anywhere But the Superiest-Speedist Typer ever to grace the foul smelling office where yearbook is done because . . . he's great with aaaaaaaawwwww!) Award. These same fingers which type so fast but ditto so slow are being held responsible for the artistic creation of the carrot top crowd populating the Mlrror cover this year and we hope you (the reader) like them because we (the staff) sure do and we hope that they will live on forever because Joel introduced the Super-Stinky-Extra-Strength-Intensive-Care lotion to dedicated yeerbuhkers to cure their extreme cases of hypnened overdry skin which he cares about so much.

proud and we like to
LOUD!

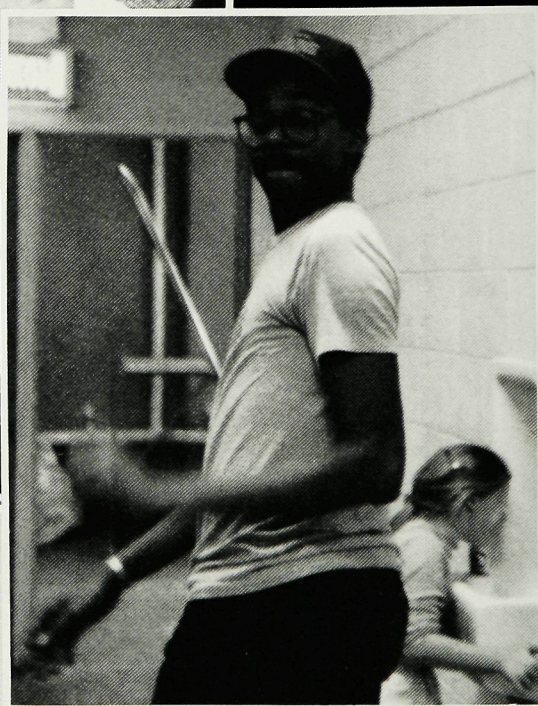

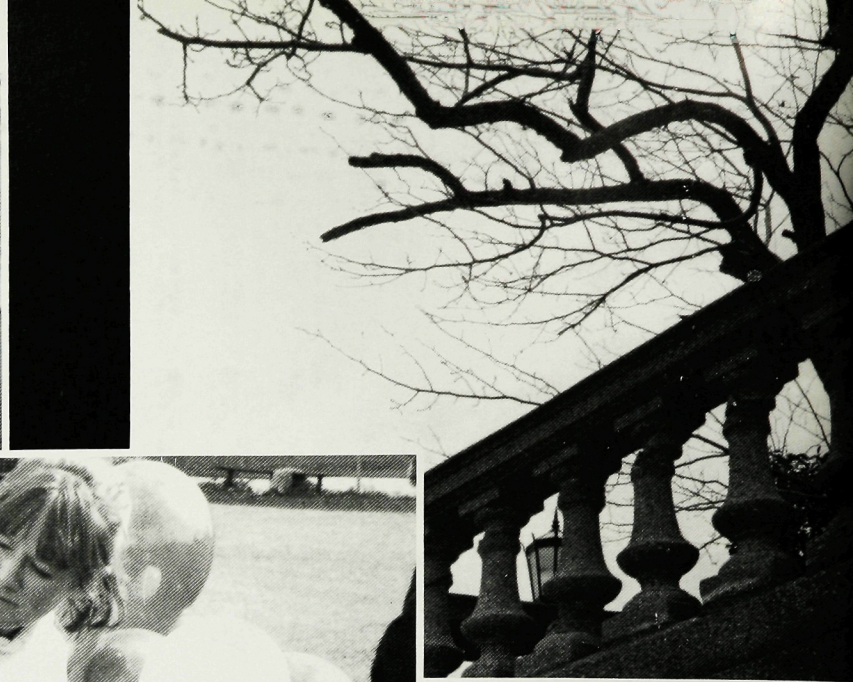

Fiona is a girl (or is it women?). Her last name is McDonagh. In the office, she has much fun and actually WANTS to do required work. She dittos very well but, has developed a severe phobia of flying Tapioca since her joining the staff. We know that she has damaged taste buds because she looves Citrus Lite, in SUPER CONCENTRATED form.

Liam Davis got off to a sloooow start this year, but when he got going he really got going!!! Fer Sure! In fact, Liam Davis our trusty and well like layout editor laid out almost this entire book. Only a select few pages were laid out by other poeple like me (the writer) or Fiona or Annie, and I think that is it! Liam, you're great but I really don't understand what you see in Tapioca. Liem also like to play patty-cake and taught a few of us impoverished Yeerbuhkers how to play. What would we do without him. Although Liem would not make a very great ed-In-Chief (check the Christmas vacation, second deadline time period) he was real dedicated and he was also usually happy and happyfying.

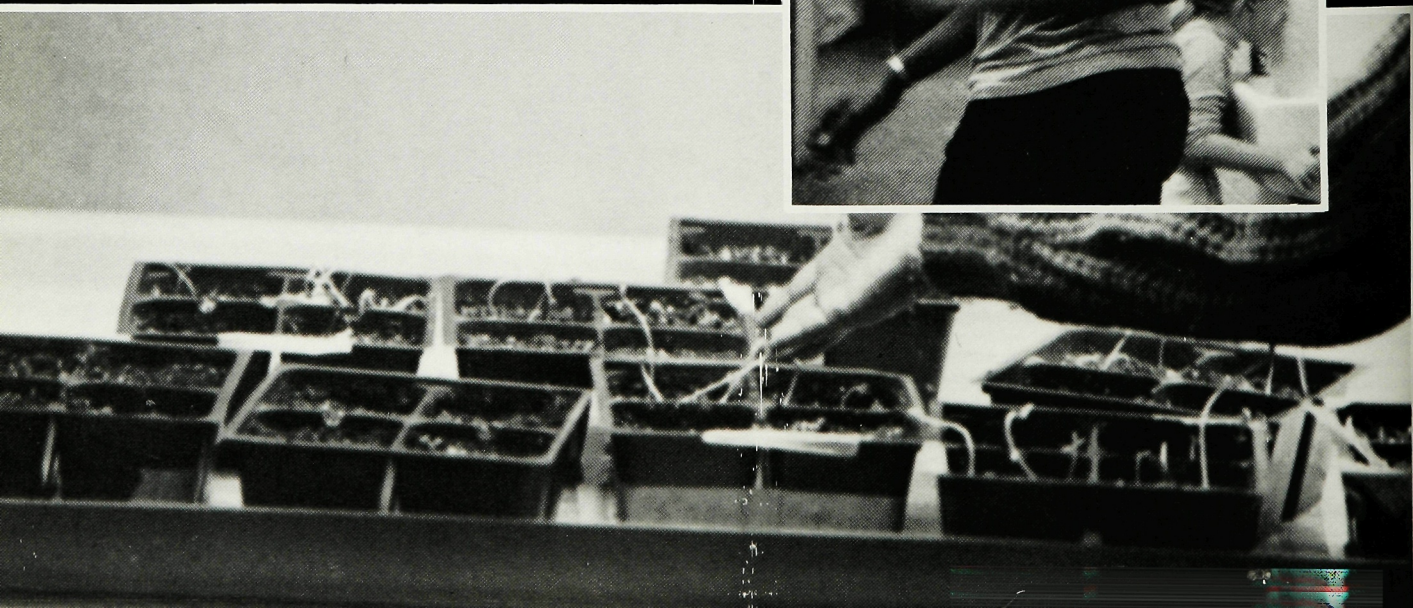

Bruce Peters was the ed-In-Chief!!! He worked real hard in some aspects and worked less hard in others. His cry of (I HATE the computer!!) was often heard and he really meant it! This book was plagued by said computer which caused many late deadlines and also quite a few extensions. It also removed our patented Yeerbuhk fund. Too bad. (Bruce can really think) Says Liem. Think he could, think of ways to avoid the office and also ways to dismantel the (Yecch, Patooie, Aggah) six o'clock Rule. He even had to house the office! He also hopes you people like the yearbook.

Other staffers include: Laura Heinz (whome we should have written something about, but didn't. Sorry, Laura) And Mark Ferris (pix) among others.

Homecoming this year was especially special because of the winning trend of the Raiders, who beat Lake Forest 22-12. Most people seemed to have lots of spirit and cheered throughout the game. G.A.P.A. sold hot dogs, hot chocolate and N.S.C.D.S. souvenirs. The annual field hockey game between the alumni and the field hockey team was tied. During half-time, the field was dedicated to "Doc" Anderson, a former coach at N.S. Balloons were also sent up at this time. Since such a large crowd was there, homecoming this year was a great success.

Work Day

Work Day . . . This year a we kicked off work day by eating donut holes and drinking apple juice while sitting in the patio listening to North Shore's band. After getting nourished for the Big day we all headed to our various areas for a fun filled morning of leaf raking. More throwing and running around was done than raking but after all, what is work day for. We then went to our lower school partners classrooms to eat lunch. The lower grades then went back to class while the upper and middle schools went off campus to citizens homes to rake leaves and to clean up their yards. As usual, it was a wonderful day and everyone had a great time.

-Molly Shotwell

Work Day 1985

Michael Conroy felt the kids at North Shore needed to be aware of another branch of music--- his particular favorite, jazz. Without a doubt, it was one of the best interims ever offered.

The first day, we listened to Mr. Conroy's extensive record collection for five hours, and learned about the different types of jazz. That Monday night, we went to a chic Yuppie club to hear live jazz and casually ordered cokes for two hours. The check came to $96.

On Tuesday, we went to DePaul University to hear its jazz band rehearse, and then took the train to the Moosehead Bar and Grill to hear another group. The Moosehead was the highlight of the week with a great band, cheap cokes, and true to its name, a large dead moose hanging from the wall.

We practiced the rest of the week for our Morning Exam in early January. Various highlights include Caren Jeskey incessantly playing the toy kazoos she won at Moosehead, arguing when the checks came over who had 1 piece of pizza, and who had one and a half, and Sam Davis yelling every two minutes, "You guys think you're all Pete Townshend." Interim week this year was both fun and educational, and if the Jazz Interim is offered next year, I recommend it highly.

Lana Fleishman

(previously unpublished photos of the "ethna-centra-city" interim)

As in past years, this year North Shore offered a Social Issues as Depicted in Film interim. The themes of the films were nuclear war, terrorism, family relationships, vigilantism, and revenge. We saw films such as Fail-Safe, The Bedford, The Little Drummer girl, The Great Santini, Ordinary People, The China Syndrome, Silkwood, Sudden Impact, and Black Sunday.

The week spent watching these films was worthwhile for the students in this interim because the films demonstrated the effects of problems such as nuclear power and terrorism on their victims. Of all the films, probably the most influential one was Ordinary People which dealt with the issue of a teenage boy learning to cope with the death of his brother. This movie won the Academy award for Best Picture because of the sensitive way in which it portrayed the boy's struggle. The students in the interim related easily to the film because it was about a teenager. Overall, the interim is a worthwhile experience for anyone who likes to see films with very moving and dramatic topics.

-Jessica Kotler

This year for interim week I did drugs and alcohol. Well, not really. But that's what I said to people who asked me what I would be doing. I really participated in Mr. Goss' Alcohol Awareness interim group. I found it an experience, to say the least!

I first got interested in the idea of Alcohol Awareness when my mother had a job placement at AIS-- the Alcohol Intervention Services department at Evanston Hospital while she was studying at the University of Chicago's School of Social Service Administration.

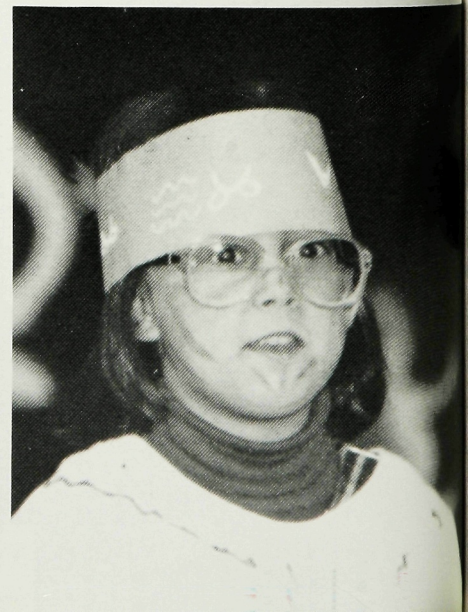

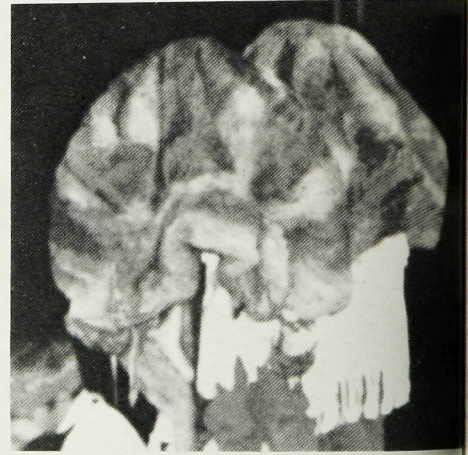

I think I already knew a lot of the facts of alcohol and alcoholism before interim week, so I was mainly interested in seeing real alcoholism and its effects. But I did not expect an experience like the one I had! I met alcoholic kids who were normal, dressed like me, liked the same music, were the same age, and had many of the same interests. That, I did not expect! It's really hard for me to describe my feelings, except to say that I feel I learned a lot about myself and my maturity as the week progressed. I also saw things that I probably knew about, but chose to hide and suppress from my thoughts.

However, the most important part of my interim week was the fact that I opened myself up, although the things I was and experienced were also an eye-opening experience.

-Chris Jeskey

Thanksgiving

1985

The entire school gathered in the auditorium to hold a food drive for the needy in the Chicagoland area, and then followed it with a "Thanksgiving Day Tribute to E.B. White." Each class was called to bring their canned food up to the stage. The food was then sent to the Greater Chicago Food Depository to be distributed. Next, passages were read from E.B. White's Charlotte's Web, and a history of the less fortunate proved that Thanksgiving '85 at North Shore was truly a day that lived up to its name.

Morning Ex

This year, 85-86, that is, the Morning Ex's ran the gamut from the indescribably booooooring to the absolutely thrilling. Students had the chance to, actually, were forced to, pet tamed "wild" animals when a slightly strange bearded man brought the world to our gym. Obviously, this MEX aroused strong emotions and was, again obviously, one of the best of the year. The 10:40-11:10 period was also filled up with plenty of speakers from every one of life's callings, films, including the always bizarre yet enjoyable Interim Week films and the Work Day film.

Maintenance

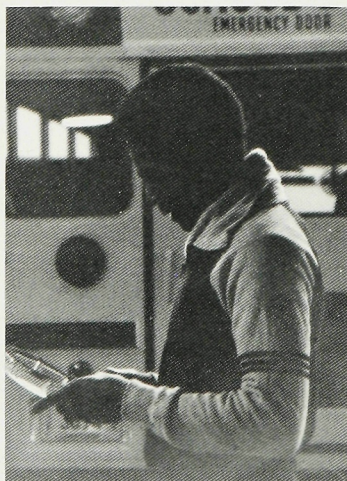

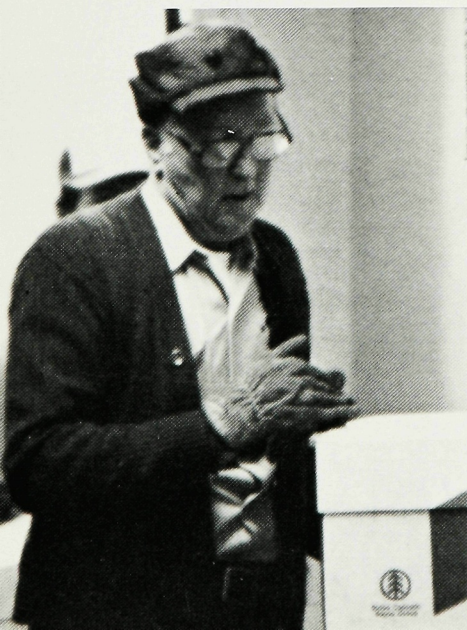

Have you ever noticed how clean North Shore's campus is? Have you ever noticed how after a destructive day at school the locker room is a wreck and then magically the next morning it's clean? Did you ever notice how the trees are so perfectly pruned? Well, if you didn't you need glasses! Due to the hard work of George Mitchell and his crew, our school has maintained that "clean" image. Though we do not show our appreciation often enough, we'd like to thank the crew for: Being there when we've forgotten the combination to the lock we've been using all year, Cleaning up what we forgot (of course, subconsciously), and lastly, For letting us in the school to get our notes for tomorrow's test (Whew, that was close!)

Vaudeville

"The 1986 N.S.C.D.S. Vaudeville was really one of the best Vaudevilles I've seen in forty years," said Coach Mac McCarty at the morning exercise on the Monday following the performance. Indeed, he was right. As a member of the cast, none of us really knew if we were going to be one hundred percent perfect. However, soon, all the cast's fears were done away with by the roaring hands of the audience. Our neverending, suicide type of pre-show worries soon turned into leaping bounds of joy. We were very glad that all of the sweat (God, this band equipment is heavy!) and jokes (Hello ladies and gentleman, welcome to the first annual Liam Davis Variety Show) were well worth the result.

Opera '86 had a special dimension this year in that it was Mr. Allison's last year. Even though we had a small cast and worked twice as hard, we had just as much fun. Because Yeomen of the Guard is one of the most musically demanding operettas that Gilbert and Sullivan wrote and had only been performed four times before in North Shore's history, we had to do much of the choreography from scratch. Aside from learning lines and music, we had to use our interpretation and new ideas for staging and set.

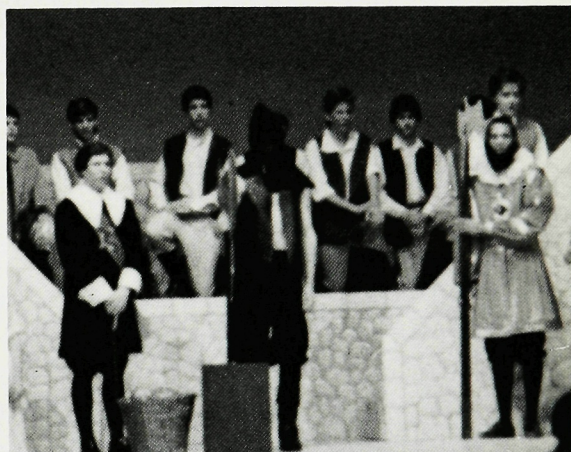

In spite of scheduling conflicts, the stage crew was able to pull together to build not only the Tower of London but also the village below. We survived the long hours of rehearsals and stage preparations and thanks to Mr. Shipley and Mrs. Radloff we had a great time and produced a great show.

In his last year and in his last opera, Mr. Allison was always there to give advice and to coach us in our parts. Through his enthusiasm, we caught the spirit of the North Shore opera and we were glad to have been a part of this great tradition.

Although our record didn't show it, this year's field hockey team was full of enthusiasm and talent. Our two new coaches led us to two very encouraging victories and showed us that "those who have the will to win cannot be beaten!" We didn't win any prizes, but all the fun made up for it! I am looking forward to playing a very competitive team next year in the alumni game. I'm very proud to have been a field hockey Raider!

This year was a really great for the middle school field hockey season. Though the running and drills were stressful, we had a good time.

Our team practiced despite the conditions. One day it was so muddy that Ann and Juliet slipped at least ten times. One could hardly recognize us after these practices.

Our season ended with a "successful" trip to Homer's for ice cream treated by Kelly and Carry.

Football 1985

The thrill of victory . . .

This year's football team impressed Mac, who, like me, thought we'd do well to go 4-4. Early on, I had my doubts, but only because we were a better team last year than our 2-6 record indicated, and I feared that, again, we might not live up to our full potential. A little determination and intensity (basically hunger) is all we needed to work on to make things fall into place this year. I could sense a different attitude around the team this year in early practices. There was a definite sense of determination around the team, proven by our crushing of many opponents such as La Lumiere (41-0), Northwestern (47-16), and Wheaton Christian (44-6). The only let-downs were two losses supplied by Mooseheart and (yecch) Urwiler. Our 7-2 record is the best compilation by a North Shore Football team in a long time. The school, Mac, Jay, and most of all, the players should be proud.

The soccer season this year was a year of rebuilding. After losing one-half of last year's starters, including the entire middle of the field, the team was faced with the tough task of assembling an aggressive squad. Behind coach Dave Williams, all conference forward Jose Miguel Romero, and spirited sweeper David Hoffheimer, the team played tough soccer for most of the season. Because the team consisted of a majority of underclassmen, the season was successful in giving these players much needed experience. The climax of the season was a 3-1 win over rival Morgan Park in the final game, proving to the team that their hard work would pay off. Although the season was not one of many victories, it was successful in providing a good time, discipline, and roots for the future of the team.

Varsity Volleyball

This year's volleyball team did very well as compared to almost all previous years! We broke a long standing record by finally beating Latin School. Our 6-5 record showed that we improved a lot. Last year, we were all convinced that since we were much better players, we would be an incredible team this year. Well, we were right. Thanx, of course to the wonderful captain . . . and the great team, mostly made up of sophomores (and a few juniors). Maybe next year we'll take 1st place in the league instead of 3rd. Though 3rd is a pretty good accomplishment . . .

Volleyball

This year's volleyball team had a surprisingly high number of players. Six sixth graders, one seventh grader and seven eighth graders made up the two teams. Everyday the team would start out by practicing with a partner and usually end up playing a game or two amongst ourselves. The two teams miraculously improved. It has been a great year, and we've enjoyed ourselves despite some problems. All of us are looking forward to beginning volleyball again. We are also looking forward to playing with the new members of the team.

Girls Tennis

This year's girl's tennis was, well, very unusual. The season began strongly with thirteen enthusiastic girls coming out for tennis. The group consisted of many seniors, new students, and some old timers as well. Everyone looked forward to a productive tennis season. The players went faithfully to pre-season practices, and they worked hard during the regular season. Although things did not turn out exactly as planned, (the final record was 1-12), the team never lost its spirit. Despite the results shown by the record, all the players improved significantly, and many won their individual matches. But do not lose your spirit, tennis team, because next year can only be better!

Spectators

Spectators at North Shore are a hardy breed. They brave soooold days and hot, steamy gyms to see their favorite school team play. They spend hours standing up and hours sitting down. They ooo and ahh at just the right time and certainly clap louder than any of the opponent's friends. Knowing how dedicated they all are, Richard P. Hall even cancelled classes to allow them to show their stuff at the football playoffs RAH! RAH! RAH!! Although, sometimes the stands are a bit sparsely populated by "Northerners", those few more than make up for their companions by snorting and eating louder than snot-doddy swine. We luv 'em, and whattdya know? These guys are sooo enthusiastic a North Shore first was held! An atrocious Pep Rally! They all had so much PEP PEP PEP!!!! YEAH, sock 'em, sock 'em, punch 'em in the nose! Sorry about all the violence but I just got so excited thinking about watching a game. Remember, we gave it our all, for the game played with any type of ball!

Tommy totally trips over his ten toes every two trimesters. Too bad. He can usually jump so high. If he could only cut off those pesky toes of his he would be a real asset to the team. As it is now he always winds up mopping the floor with his shorts. Too bad. I love Tommy and want to go out to a game with him sometime to show him how basketball is REALLY played, on your feet. Otherwise, He is a Good Student

A lot was expected of this year's varsity basketball team for many reasons. The main reason was that we had Tay Mayer a leading player for us and with the other remaining seniors from last year's team we put together one of North Shore's tallest and most talented teams. All of the starters and the first couple of substitutions were all over six feet in height which made us the tallest team in the league. Seniors "Sweet" Taylor Mayer (co-captain) and Curt "Speedy" Kaplan head the list and six foot four. Then comes Fred "Ice" Scott and six foot two and a host of others at six foot one including Joel "Papa" Jacobson, myself Bill Bach (co-captain), Drew McCannan, Jeff Swanson and Andrew Brown. Others on the team are Hoff, Tom Beerheide, Chris Avery, Cary Kelly and Deane Malott. Our height won the first couple of games which include the first varsity victory over Elgin Academy in over five years. Then our lack of rapidity started to hamper us and we lost a couple of games because of it. We placed second in the Christmas tournament and then came the most talked about game of the year against Francis Parker. We controlled the game most of the way and ended up with a thrilling overtime victory that made the opposition cry. All of our free throw practice payed off in this game because the game we won from the line. Mayer lead the game with 17 out of 20 from the stripe and a career high 35 points overall. Free throw shooting is part of the reason why Tay continued to be one of the Chicago Area leading scores. The rest of the season should be very interesting because we will have a chance at winning the league. If somehow things don't work out with having the team, don't lose hope. A host of juniors, several sophomores and Coach Jay Bach hopefully can bring the first title to North Shore.

Lunch

If a student knew the lunch line proctor, it was quite easy to eat lunch before 1:10. Many new friends (particularly in the junior class) were made this year.....

The food choices this year were, well, um, uh...unusual. Though the students and faculty thoroughly enjoyed the savory tacos, not much can be said for what was thought to be grilled cheese, but then discovered to be (in one delicious bite) a ham and cheese sandwich. As for dessert, (or for some, lunch) Grandma's brownies, chocolate chip cookies and the new assortment of ice creams were popular.

I also just loooooove her outfits!! She coordinates her colours so well See you soon Sally, come play again sometime.

With three of the members attending a basketball camp during the summer and eight returning varsity letter-winners, the girls varsity basketball team went into this season cautiously optimistic. One bad sign was that there were not enough players for a junior varsity team. Another sign was that Emi, a key player, was unable to play because of a back injury. Then, the team had a tough early schedule, with seven out of eleven games away from home, which didn't help the team's morale. However, two strong victories anow looks forward to the next seven games, six of which are at home. The team's leading scorer is Ana Castillo and captains are Christy Aggens and Mary Ellen Wing. The record so far is three wins and nine losses. Our new assistant coach, Edee Madsen, helped the team in plays and drills. On a sad note, this year was Mr. Conroy's last year as a coach for the girls basketball team. Lisa Angert

The Kindergarten 85-86 (To the tune of "Super Bowl Shuffle")

We are the kgtn -- four and five
No bolder class is alive.
We sing and dance, skip and play
We're learning more every day
12th graders are our best friends
To this friendship, there is no end.
Side by side we planted flowers
That you will see with April showers.
The Indian life became our way,
Stories and games we had to say
Just how much the Indian gave American culture we want to save.
When winter came our cold, white way
Forty Frostys appeared in the winter play.
We rolled right in to sing a song
Hoping for a sunny Spring all along.
An inch taller & a few pounds gained
Our Frosty costumes melted--Oh what a shame.
Spring had arrived to our delight--where we Welcomed our beach adventures and Water fights.
Summer is here with the end of the school year
Good-byes were shared with only happy tears.
For next year will soon come filled
With learning, laughing and even more fun.

First Grade

Memories of this class include happy days with good friends. They sang in French, did Spanish dances, and built an American farm. From Old MacDonald to Knight Rider, this group of "live wires" never stopped. They made their own live wires with batteries which lit a dashboard that beeped and buzzed in a sleek black race car.

Dinosaurs roamed the room, and the children created exciting books about them.

From giant dinosaurs to giant squash, this group created a farm stand which carried many of the largest vegetables grown in Illinois.

The Post Office was probably the busiest place in the room. Friends enjoyed to write to each other, and it was fun to be able to read the notes - a new skill for many.

The police station registered all the students and kept order in the room. The hospital took care of all emergencies (26 doctors and nurses on staff). The travel agency helped to plan many trips.

A highlight of the year was the report given by each child on one of his favorite places. Often parents brought slides and treats which helped describe the life style of the vacation spot. Brian Rohlen shared slides of his winter trip to Kenya. The class read about Stanley and Livingston in Africa during the Explorer Unit. They also learned about Marco Polo, Admiral Byrd, Henry Hudson, and Jacques Cousteau. When they studied the Vikings, the class constructed a huge Viking ship with mast and sail which carried them across rough oceans to Iceland, Greenland, and Vinland.

These navigators were the first to guide the turtle robot across the floor with Logo commands. They programmed him to walk from student to student, to do a dance of circles, and to make his own giant star on paper.

The starts of first grade did many interesting things. Most of all they were fun, friendly, eager and bright.

History can be fascinating if it's all about you! The second grade students researched their family histories this year. They collected favorite childhood stories from their mothers and fathers, drew up family trees, interviewed their grandparents, and compared special family recipes. The stories have been told and retold through oral storytelling. Each family history was compiled in a "Family Album" which, of course, will be handed down to future generations.

This year's fourth grade is an eager, enthusiastic and great group of boys and girls. They thrive on order and challenges and are able to work well together as a whole class. Their interests and talents are varied which has allowed us to try some new experiences during school time. We have participated in the Lyric opera docent program culminating in a performance of Madame Butterfly plus a backstage tour of the Lyric Opera in Chicago. The children's spontaneous interest in early man produced excellent projects on such diverse topics as Australopithecines and the cro-magnon men as well as the tools and shelter of the very early humans.

Fourth grade uses Chicago as a major resource and visits the city often. Whether for museums, the lake, lunch or walks, Chicago is looked upon as an exciting city that we are privileged to live near.

From math to creative writing, P.E. to social studies, this 1985-86 class of fourth graders does everything with the excitement and enthusiasm that makes the year extra-specially unique.

Sixth

Grade

In September the sixth grade took a luxurious, one-night camping trip to the Indiana State Park. The twenty seven students and three teachers wallowed in the four, spacious tents. The sun shone brightly upon the necks of those whose necks were exposed to it. Or, in other words, the weather was absolutely faaantaastic; in fact, it was soooo nice, many people even waded into the lake which was present at the time. Don't be fooled! Although the sun shone very brightly and people found time to wade in the lake, there was learning to do!!! Everyone attended science classes in which water samples were taken from the very same lake which was waded into by the touring sixth graders. In case you're wondering, the lake which was waded into just happened to be Lake Michigan!! Samples were also tested from bogs around the area. Math also conquers!!! The sun, which was burning brightly, provided shadows for the extremely enthusiastic students to measure things by. The shadows became rulers! Not only Science and Math, but also ENGLISH! The State Park situated in Indiana also provided highly detailed and fabulously and magnificently beautiful surroundings which were carefully observed and recorded for future times. Descriptions were written to describe these different-from-North-Shore surroundings. Then, after all this learning was said and done, and the night had fallen like a biiiig boulder into the dark, depths of the ocean, a warming campfire was built and . . . yummmmmm yummm . . . HOT DOGS were roasted on the open fire. It kept the Night Frost from nipping at the nose . . . After the nutritious hot dogs were hungrily wolfed down s'mores satisfactorily satisfied the sweet teeth which chattered around the fire listening to extremely frightening ghooost stories. Boo!! After the sixth-graders were thouroughly scared out of their wits, raccoons came carousing around to further scare the campers to insomnia. In the month of October, the kids made their own insect collections to heighten their knowledge of other forms of life. It really worked, so the students took a trip to the museum and saw a very large and professional collection of dead insects which was really quite an experience. The Aquarium was also visited so that the kids could imitate the puckering action of the many fish housed there (Just Kidding!).

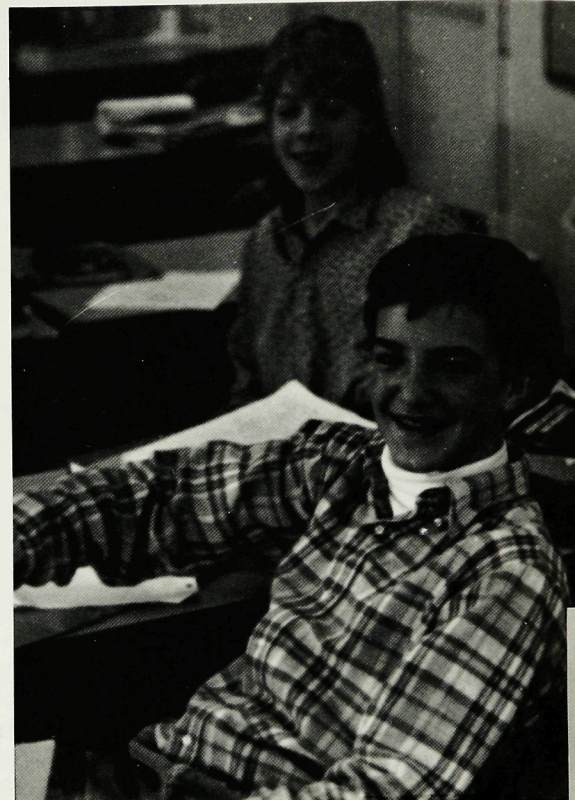

Without the help of Ms. Gibson the sixth-graders would probably never have gotten up on stage to do a Morning Ex. While up in the spotlight for the prestigious thirty minutes, they sang and played a large variety of instruments. Spring, summer, fall or winter, nature calls out to the 85-86 sixth graders! In Decembrrrrrr a visit to the Botanic gardens was made. Instead of climbing up the trees like monkeys, the children attended a class on conifers (that is, they studied conifers, not IN conifers) and then made some craftsy items from a variety of christmas greens.

Again and again and again! Another field trip occurred in January of the new year, this time it was to the symphony and the Art Institute. OOoooooooops! I mean, it was to go to the symphony and Art Institute but the bus suddenly decided to stop on Monroe st., whereupon it promptly coated itself with ice. For an agonizing two hours, the patient sixers lived their lives in a stranded bus, just the place to find a new friend, or maybe an old enemy! They were finally rescued but the symphony and the Art Institute were cancelled, of course, so they will just have to wait until later on.

Life as a 7th grader--Profile of the 7th grade

1. If I were to describe my personality, I would say I am:

nice to most people, generous, caring, shy, sensitive, daring, amusing, noisy, funny, cool, happy alone, weird, active, intelligent, friendly, hard-working, competitive, happy

2. Sports I like to participate in are:

football, hockey, tennis, skiing, ice skating, soccer, baseball, swimming, gymnastics, dance

3. When I relax, I like to:

listen to music, read, build models, go horseback riding, watch TV, sleep, eat, talk on the phone

4. The music I like best:

Talking Heads, Prince, Tears for Fears, Willie Nelson, Oakridge Boys, Madonna, Sting, David Bowie, Police, Dire Straits, Billy Idol, Van Halen, A-Ha, Bruce Springsteen, The Who

5. I choose as friends people who are: loyal, nice, funny, weird, athletic, independent, like me, not stuck up, cool, happy, mature, smart, honest, considerate

6. My parents are always telling me to:

make my bed, brush my teeth, do my homework, stop annoying my brother, have my priorities straight, use my head, turn my music down, get off the phone, clean my room, practice piano, not talk back, not goof around

7. If I could be anything, I'd be:

a business man, an actress, living in Hawaii, me,me,me,me, a games designer, a doctor, an engineer, rich, out of school, on my way to France, a football player

8. To me, a "good education" means:

a head start in a career, not much until you are on your own, learning, getting good grades, a good future, everything, common sense, skill

9. Social and political issues I care about:

hijacking, U.S. and Libya, nuclear war, terrorism, economy, problems in the Middle East, elections

10. The world would be a better place if:

there were an end to war, kids ruled it, there were no violence, hunger ended, drunk driving ended, there were no drugs, there were understanding, all men were equal, there were no crime, we didn't have pollution, people accepted other people's differences

Innisfree, Michigan: With the Superbowl victory secured the 8th Grade set out for the isolation and tranquility of Michigan. An eight hour bus ride brought them to a chilly, snow-covered camp near Traverse City. No T.V. No walkmen. But lots of walking, cross-country skiing and sledding. New relationships were forged, old friendships cemented, in the joy of sharing a new experience. A different way of life seemed very appealing after five months in the classroom! And of course there were memories . . .

Field Trips: The 8th Grade took several educational field trips to various locations, such as: a sewage plant, The Art Institute, Berghoff Restaurant and "Out of Africa." Parents also organized social gatherings at the Kenilworth Village Hall and a ski-trip to Wisconsin.

NEW FALL ADMINISTRATION

Dorothy Neville

This has been not only my first year teaching at North Shore, but it has also been my first year teaching high schoolers. They have proven to be quite a contrast to adults. Instead of a roomful of serious faces with me being the only silly element; now I am the older serious face that must keep the silliness in check. It has been challenging, frustrating, exciting, and exhausting but never dull. I feel as if I have learned more about students, what they think, say, and how they react than I could have possibly taught in return.

Nancy Ohr Travis

Director of Publications and P.R.

Edee Madsen

The teaching and coaching experiences I have had at North Shore this year have been very enjoyable. The students are challenging, and the administration and staff are very supportive and professional. It is exciting to see the variety of opportunities offered to each child and the well-rounded education that each one is receiving. I believe the School uses the Chicago area to its fullest advantage to benefit the students and faculty here, and I'm happy to be a part of the education process at North Shore Country Day.

In the process of being an exchange student at North Shore, one learns many things. There are the experiences of having a kindergartener in your lap at Morning Ex, of your first hour in the senior homeroom, of trying to find out what people really mean when they say "awesome" and finally, of understanding what everyone is getting so excited about. On a more serious note, the year at North Shore has taught me many things, allowed me to meet so many different people and to experience so many varied ideas. In return, all I can say is "Thanks very much it has been great, even AWESOME." Sean Wilken

The Freshman Class

The ninth grade class this year was probably the most bizarre one in the country! We had a varied assortment of kids, ranging from the annoying to the genuinely weird. "It's kinda like your one half is here and the other one is floating away in limbo or something . . ." (Mr. Pasanen) We had a girl whose brother chased her around the house with a fire poker, short people, a guy who offered to host a German exchange student and moved, two people who formed their own heavy metal band: ICBM, a guy notorious for attracting tornadoes and Halley's Comet, four kids who formed a band, Satin Steel ("Is that kinda like steel wool?"), a sixth assortment of Frankie jokes, two kids who, by intellect, should have been seniors, the three most pessimistic people in the universe, the largest pair of headphones in the world, the victim of the famous MEX windbreakers scandal, and uncanny infestation of trolls. Oh well, that's enough of that. See you next year! -Ian Murphy, Colm Davis, Peter Geyer

Tenth Grade

Like soup, class of '88 is made up of many different ingredients. The personalities are quite diverse. With all our new people, a lot from New Trier, we have our pre-cooked vegetables. Our Anshe Amet alumniees have added matzo balls to the soup. From the foreign regions of the city, we add our herbs, who come two hours away just to experience the wonderful atmosphere of N.S. On top, our yogurt nuts from the Western Side of the North Shore. From Lake County we have our two most distinct variational contrasts. If you add all these together, you will end up with one terrific class (or heartburn)! Overall, the sophomore class had a pretty good year this year. We made new friends, new memories, etc. Sure we had our ups and downs, but as most sophomores like to say, "We're awesome!"

US Classtime!

Classes at North Shore, we all might complain but let's face it, the whole reason for school is to learn, and when does one learn? During CLASSTIME, of course! The classes, renowned far and wide, go from the simple teaching of addition in the lower grades (simple, that it, only to those who have already mastered it) to the highly demanding AP Chem. In classes, students laugh, cry, giggle, pass notes, pass tests, (fail tests), eat (sometimes), yell, scream, discuss intelligently, become eager and also bored, but overall undeniably, we learn and study. Classes such as Chemistry are even fun with the ever energetic Mr. Goss, able to explain one thing for four hours straight to a confused student, or Art I with Mr. Almquist's ever changing notes and messages and devilish assignments (reorchestrations). Whatever we say, the classes are fun and a necessary appt of school (Hell, they are school!).

The duration of the year looked like this: Homeroom meeting appeared organized for a change, we raised over $5500 by investing in the stock market and even kept up with the tradition of raising more money for prom by selling doughnuts and taffy apples. When we were asked what we thought we should do with the rest of the money people came up with interesting answers. "Let's buy a senior car", "a television" and "a refidgerator" for the senior homeroom. The words "Illegal off-campus" seemed to be the big joke of the junior class. I wonder why? White Hen and McDonalds alone must have made a fortune off of us. Anyway, we have sucessfully raised money for the prom and have gotten our act together since freshman year. This year's junior class is close and I hope that the compatability will remain the same.

The Class of 1986 Seniors Seniors Seniors Seniors Seniors Seniors Seniors Seniors Seniors

This is the year! The year we have our very own room! What should we do in this room? Well, first lets turn the stereo (the mono, actually) FULL BLAST, then demolish a few couches and chairs and play a few ballgames: soccer, basketball, football, water balloon toss or "shoot the enemies" with the notorious pellet guns. We could dismantle the lights and create a year long growing chain of White Hen matchbooks, and in general, create a room of total terror and destruction. What else should we do? College applications would be nice, and a bit of homework would be fine, too. Let's become good friends with our favorite Kindergarten pals and learn to become the "leaders" of the school (good luck). Actually, it was a fun year and we were all sure to take full advantage of our "Seniority".

Third row: Joanne Heyman, Scott Fernlund, Paul Dewoskin, Mark Bransfield, Stephanie Britt, Katie Stitt, Sandy Seidman, Jessica Kotler, Eric Matthies, Rebecca Andreou, Sarah Geist, Aviva Cahn

"We are lifers!" proudly say Mark and Bruce, "We came to North Shore in Junior Kindergarten and continued our fine educations at this fiiiiiine school for an uninterrupted 14 years!" "There is the definition of a lifer. Now, some insight as to what is like to be one of the cherished few. "One needs to really like the school," says one, "and to really want to learn." Both of this year's lifers have had numerous kin also attend the school. North Shore has become a sort of family tradition. In addition to growing and maturing at N.S., both lifers have seen the school grow and change. They have suffered through the loss of teachers, classmates, and the most dreadful, the loss of the GIGANTIC school bell. Through thick and thin, these two rough and tough fellows have floated upon the sea of life in the boat named North Shore Country Day School. A special commendation is given to Sarah Geist who missed the 14 year mark by 2, entering in first grade. A regular commendation goes to Liam Davis who WAS here in kindergarten but decided to jump boat in first grade. After five years he saw the error of his ways and again climbed aboard!

-A lifer (of course), but try to guess which one! (Ha Ha Haaaaaaaaa!)

Senior Prophecies

World famous, top fashion model, Rebecca Andreou has just bought out the Greek Isles. When asked about her incredible purchase, Ms. Andreou replied "I wanted to know that there will always be a place where my name will not be mispronounced."

Mark Bransfield, top executive of the Moosehead Beer Corporation, during interviews for prospective employees has been reported to suddenly LEAP out from behind his stately, executive desk and bash out John Bonham's solo "Moby Dick" on the drum set that he keeps in his posh office. When asked the reason for his odd behavior, Mr. Bransfield was quoted as saying "Well, I just wanted to see the looks on their faces."

Well known author of The Tower of Grad-Imetholl series, Stephanie Britt has just won the Read-The-Entire-Contents-Of-The-Library-Of-Congress-In-Three-Weeks Contest. When asked to comment on how she could achieve such a monumental task, Ms. Britt just smiled mysteriously, and, throwing her flowing black cloak over her face, stole away into the night.

Famed third baseman for the Boston Red Sox, Dave Burnell wowed the crowd last Saturday when he sang the National Anthem at the beginning of the game and refused to desist until the seventh inning stretch when he broke into "Take Me Out to the Ballgame", special a capella version, followed by a medley of sixties tunes which he carried into the last out of the ninth inning. After the game, Mr. Burnell gave a sneak preview of his new solo recording project, Tavis-Aid, the profits of which will go to the Society for the Development of Insane Laughter During Morning Ex.

Dashing entrepreneur Aviva Cahn has just released her new videotape for female jewish Ballet-dancing accountants. When asked if she were going to produce a second one, she replied scornfully, "Oy vey! That's QUEER!"

Professional stuntman, Drew "Loop" Cuncannan, in a fit of frustration at not being able to find employment for the last six months got into his Ferrari 308 GTB, last week, and jumped the Long Island Sound. Mr. Cuncannan then drove to New York City and climbed the World Trade Center. Upon reaching the top, he pulled out his trusty box of Quisp cereal and jumped. Between bites he was heard screaming, "LOOK'S LIKE WE'RE BANKING IT, GUYS!"

Liam Davis has just come out with his new Broadway musical, modern dance-allet show done with only a single acoustic guitar for accompaniment. Allowing only one week to pass since releasing his previous effort, Mr. Davis was quoted as saying, "Well, I'm saahrry, I lead a busy life!" The current rage of the "Liam Davis Hair Flip" is also sweeping the nation. Specialists are currently researching the effect of the constant flip upon the brain.

Avid White Sox fan, Paul DeWoskin, caused a riot last Wednesday when he interrupted the game by jumping onto the field to protest a call made by the umpire. Mr. DeWoskin has filed a civil suit against the umpire on the grounds that "It was a bad call. It was so obviously a bad call. It was stupid."

The new governor of Alaska, CORCELLA DuLANIA, made public yesterday, in her press conference, the reason that she decided to run for the office. Said Governor DuLania, "I just needed a big, quiet place to work on my math."

Scott Fernlund, while tanning on a beach last year put on his sunglasses and looked out to sea and lo and behold!, he saw a multitude of scantily clad mermaids floating upon a raft of numerous beer kegs. Calling up his patented Fernlund Adrenaline rush, he quickly swam out and took the flotilla captive. Mr. Fernlund has not been seen since.

Executive businesswoman of the 90's, Lana Fleishman has just become the richest woman in the world, and her company, "Moonlighting, Inc." has just celebrated its fifth year in the Fortune 500. Her live-in companion, Bruce Willis has nominated her for the Woman of the Year. "That's so gay," she shrieked, "I just wanna be RICH!!!"

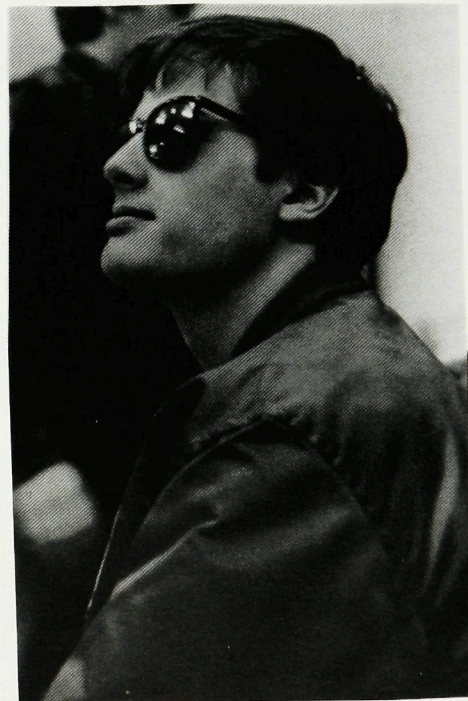

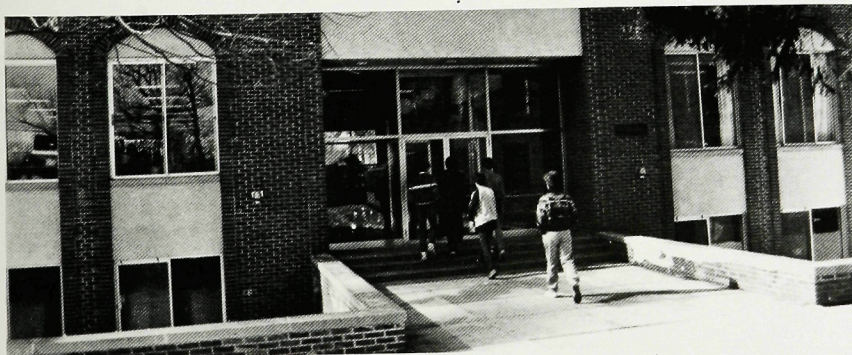

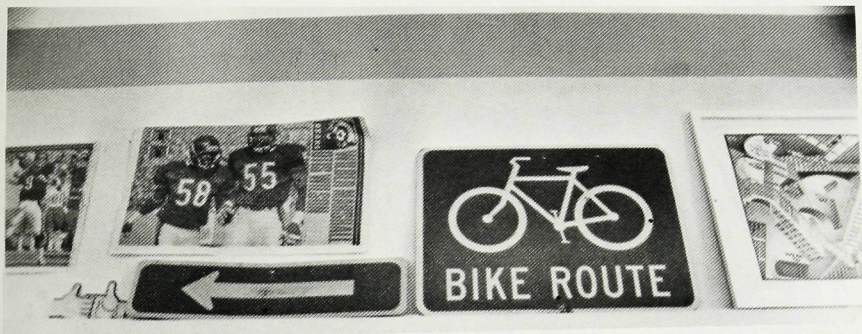

To help boost the ratings of his almost-soon-to-be-cancelled show, Leonard Nemoy has announced that the Silver Anniversary episode will be entitled, "In Search Of . . . EMI FUJITA."

Sarah Geist, makeup artist for the musical group Duran Duran has just introduced her new line of makeup for men. Ms. Geist has entitled this line "Vive Le Simon."

Joanne Heyman, who has been running around the lecture circuit recently, was barred from lecturing at Tufts University when three people committed suicide during her two week long non-stop lecture on "How to make up your mind."

Avante-Garde rock culture promoter Chris Jeskey was arrested Friday for her radical decoration of the Sears Tower in Chicago. When interviewed on why she chose the black, green, fluorescent red, fluorescent yellow, blue, mauve, chartreuse, fuschia, olive, magenta, amber, silver mocha, peach, ochre, paisley purple and vivid pink color combination, she replied, "Oh, come on, you guys, it was so boring! I wanted it to be unique."

Curt Kaplan, yesterday, was suspended for the season from the Major League Hockey team, the Michigan Meaters. It seems Mr. Kaplan brutally beat a member of the opposite team after he insulted Curt's paisley shorts. When asked what he would do, Mr. Kaplan replied "Well, I don't know, I guess I'll engineer a freindly take over of Guido's Icee Juicee factory, ya' know."

Brian Lax, avid follower of the Doonesbury comic strip, has just mounted an attack against those people who cut it out of the early morning papers. When asked what his first plan of action will be, Mr. Lax replied while munching on his Carnation breakfast bar, "Well, come on, you guys! First I need an office!"

The new owner of the entire Dominick's Finer Food's chain, Jessica Kotler, told reporters yesterday of the publication of her new novel, "Foodstore", a sweeping saga spanning five generations and three continents, about the foundation of the first supermarkets.

Senior Prophecies con't.

Famed coreographer, John Marrinson, announced, today, the plans for his new creation, "The Dance of the Sugar-Plum Faries" set to Motley Crue's "Smokin' in the Boy's Room." He got the idea, he says, while driving 120 m.p.h. and a butterfly landed in his car but immediately died because of the highly amplified heavy metal music. "That's just too bad," John is quoted as saying.

Eric Matthies, first man to attempt to surf across the Atlantic Ocean while doing a photo essay for National Geographic, encountered, yesterday, a 49 1/2 foot great white shark which he dubbed "Jaws 19". "Man, it was awsome! I almost fell of my surfboard trying to get a picture of the thing!"

-----NEWS FLASH!!!-----

Tay Mayer's basketball team, The Rapidly Moving Eyes, has just lost it's first game in its 5 year existence. When founder Mr. Mayer was asked what he thought about the game he replied, "It was harsh." His reaction to their now blemished record: "It's beat." When told a rematch was already scheduled, Taylor's face immediately lit up and he said, "Well, alright!"

Former PlayGirl centerfold and lead singer for the phenomemal band, The Carrotop Triplets, Bruce Peters revealed to Interview magazine yesterday, the installment of his new franchise of new wave photo booths called Bailey's Booths. Interview reported that this trend has surpassed even Mr. Peters line of tie-dyed long johns. He refused to comment as to why he didn't change his haircolor 20 times in one week (hahahahahahaha!).

Lindsay Popper, world famous fashion designer/model/painter, has announced her engagement to the star of "The Magic of Oil Painting with Bill Alexander" shown on Ch.11. Ms. Popper has decided to keep her own last name and to convert the show to either "My Favorite BMX Boogie Tunes" or "Painting with Popper".

Christina Rűsz, Danish Representative to the United Nations, was just forcefully removed from the World Peace meeting for her excessive chit-chat. However, her years as Representative were very prosperous due to the fact that she had already experienced every possible crisis in her homeland of Denmark.

Stock Market Analyst, SANDY SEIDMAN, let it slip, yesterday, which corporations she feels are poor investments, causing a riot on the floor where thousands scrambled to sell the now almost worthless stock. During a special news conference, today, Sandy explained, "I was just saying 'Have a nice day' in German and you all misunderstood me."

Kathryn Stitt, the president of the Horse Riders Association of America has just released her forty-third play, written in iambic pentameter. It has been rumoured that the prolific Ms. Stitt's solo a capella record sales have just topped 49 million, a new record.

Sean Wilken, the author, printer and publisher of the widely acclaimed work, The Book of Every Fact Known to Man, suffered a near fatal incident, yesterday, when he was almost strangled by his buttoned to the neckline shirt. When asked to comment on his brush with death, Mr. Wilken responded, "Oh, it was bad alright, but I just went out right after it happened and got myself some crumpet and tea and had a REALLY good time!"

Mary Ellen Wing, new Head of the World History Dept. at Carleton College ran screaming from her office Yesterday, wildly waving her "J" Field hockey stick at anything that moved. Friends are attributing Ms. Wing's strange behavior to field hockey withdrawal symtoms.

The Excitement of Discovery and Achievement...

The electronics revolution is opening new frontiers, from the far reaches of space to the intricate circuitry of minicomputers.

Gould stands at the leading edge of that revolution. We've created an environment to foster new ideas and to advance technology. Gould is a company where creative energy and excitement continually break barriers ...making possible products and services that were unimaginable 5 to 10 years ago.

Today... Gould is concentrating its interrelated technologies and products in the following high-growth electronics markets: minicomputers, industrial automation, test and measurement, medical instrumentation, defense systems, semiconductors, and other electronic components and materials.

Tomorrow... we're ready for the explosive growth in high technology products and services... a solid future, with Gould as a major factor in the revitalization of American industry.
